

Agreement for Publication and Sharing of Rights

Introduction and Overview

The following “Agreement for Publication and Sharing of Rights” is based on a template from Columbia University’s Center for Digital Research and Scholarship (cdrs.columbia.edu). It is written to reflect the position that the Author retains the copyright in the Article and has explicit rights to use the Article in future research, teaching, and other projects. The Journal, as publisher, has the rights to publish the article in various formats and to license the publication of the Article through third-party database providers. This Agreement is based on the assumption that the Author is in fact the copyright owner (as the Author confirms in Paragraph 5). The Author should inform the Journal if, for example, the Author created the Article “for hire” (e.g., as an employee) or as an officer or employee of the U.S. Government, or if the Author has previously transferred the copyright, perhaps to an employer or another publisher.

The Agreement permits broad open access of the Article as the parties desire or as required by funding agencies, such as the NIH Public Access Policy. The Agreement also permits the Journal to publish the Article online without restrictions on access, and the Author may post the Article for Internet access and contribute it to an institutional or discipline-based repository.

The Agreement permits the Journal to publish the Article with a Creative Commons license. The use of such a license indicates to readers that they may make appropriate uses of the Article in their own study, teaching, or other activities. For example, the license would permit an instructor at a nonprofit college to make copies of the Article and share them with students, in paper or electronically. Uses that involve commercial purposes or that require any revision of the Article may require permission if not within fair use or other copyright exception. The copyright owner (initially the Author) would be the appropriate party to contact for that permission.

Acceptance and Agreement

Patient Experience Journal (the “Journal”), a publication of The Beryl Institute, is pleased to accept for publication your article:

---

[Insert your article title here]

(Hereinafter the “Article”).

In order to better manage the rights associated with your Article, and to provide optimal access to it, we maintain you (the “Author”) hold the copyright to your Article, but that you grant to the Journal appropriate rights to use your Article for the benefit of the scholarly community. The parties believe that this arrangement will properly serve our shared interest in reaching the largest readership possible. To that end, the parties agree as follows:

1. Acceptance for Publication. The Journal is pleased to accept the Article for publication, and it is currently scheduled for publication in Volume 7, Issue 2 of the Journal.
2. Author Does not Assign Copyright. Nothing in this Agreement shall be construed as an assignment of the copyright in the Article to the Journal.
3. License to the Journal. The Author hereby licenses to the Journal the irrevocable, nonexclusive, and royalty-free rights as follows:
  - 3.1 The Journal may publish the Article in any format, including electronic and print media. Specifically, this license includes the right to reproduce, publicly distribute and display, and transmit the Article or portions thereof in any manner, through any medium now in existence or developed in the future, including but not limited to print, electronic, and digital media, computerized retrieval systems, and other formats.
  - 3.2 The Journal may prepare translations and abstracts and other similar adaptations of the Article in furtherance of its publication of the Article.
  - 3.3 The Journal may use the Author’s name, likeness, and institutional affiliation in connection with any use of the Article and in promoting the Article or the Journal.
  - 3.4 The Journal may exercise these rights directly or by means of third parties. The Journal may authorize third-party publishers, aggregators, and printers to publish the Article or to include the Article in databases or other services. [Examples of such third parties include Westlaw, Lexis, and EBSCO.]
  - 3.5 The Journal may without further permission from the Author transfer, assign, or sublicense the rights that the Journal has pursuant to this Agreement.
  - 3.6 In order to foster wider access to the Article, especially for the benefit of the nonprofit community, the Author hereby grants to the Journal the authority to publish the Article with a Creative Commons “Attribution, Non-Commercial, No Derivatives” license. The Author should consult the Creative Commons website ([www.creativecommons.org) for further information.]

- 3.7 This license of rights to the Journal shall take effect immediately. In the event that the Journal does not publish the Article, this license to the Journal shall terminate upon written notification by the Journal to the Author, or upon termination of all publication by the Journal. To the extent that moral rights may apply to the Article, this agreement does not affect the moral rights of the Author in or to the Article.
4. Rights of the Author. Without suggesting any limit on other rights that the Author may have with respect to the Article, the Author retains the following rights. To the extent that the Journal holds similar rights with respect to the Article consistent with this Agreement, the Author shall hold these rights on a nonexclusive basis. To the extent that the Article includes edits and other contributions by the staff of the Journal, the rights of the Author in this Paragraph include the right to use such edits and contributions.
- 4.1 The Author may publish the Article in another scholarly journal, in a book, or by other means. The Author may exercise this right of publication only after the date of first publication of the Article in the Journal in any format.
- 4.2 The Author shall, without limitation, have the right to use the Article in any form or format in connection with the Author's teaching, conference presentations, lectures, other scholarly works, and for all of Author's academic and professional activities.
- 4.3 The Author shall at any time have the right to make, or to authorize others to make the final published version of the Article available in digital form over the Internet, including, but not limited to, a website under the control of the Author or the Author's employer or through digital repositories including, but not limited to, those maintained by scholarly societies, funding agencies, or the Author's employer. This right shall include, without limitation, the right of the Author to permit public access to the Article as part of a repository or through a service or domain maintained by the Author's employing institution or a service as required by law or by agreement with a funding agency. The Journal may in its discretion deposit the Article with any digital repository consistent with deposits permitted by the Author under this paragraph. [Examples of such repositories include SSRN, arXiv.org, PubMed Central, etc.]
- 4.4 Any of the aforementioned permitted uses of the Article noted in this section, or of any work based substantially on the Article, shall include an appropriate citation to the Article, stating that it has been or is to be published in the Journal, with name and date of the Journal publication and the Internet address for the website of the Journal.
5. Author's Representations. The Author represents and warrants that the Author owns the copyright in the Article. The Author represents and warrants that the Article has not been published before, constitutes the Author's own original work, and does not violate, in whole or in part, any existing copyright. The Author also represents and warrants that to the best of the Author's knowledge and belief, the Article does not defame, invade the privacy of, violate the civil rights of, or otherwise infringe the rights of any person. The Author represents and warrants that the Author has full power to enter into this Agreement and to convey the rights herein granted. If the Article has more than one author, the Author by signing below represents that he or she has authority to act on behalf of all other authors.

6. Editing of the Article. This Agreement is subject to the understanding that the ordinary editing processes of the Journal will be diligently pursued and that the Article will not be published by the Journal unless, in its final form, it is acceptable both to the Author and to the Journal.
7. Jurisdiction. This Agreement shall be construed as a contract and copyright issues shall be governed by the federal law of the United States.
8. Merger. This Agreement constitutes the sole expression of all understandings between the Author and the Journal with respect to the Journal's agreement to publish the Article and with respect to copyright and republication rights. This Agreement shall not be modified other than in writing.

The corresponding/lead author is requested to please sign where indicated below. By signing below, the corresponding/lead author acknowledges they are signing (and have the right to sign) on behalf of all authors. Please return the signed original Agreement to the Journal no later than Friday, July 31, 2020 to be included in Vol 7, Issue 2. The Author is urged to permanently retain a copy of this Agreement for future reference.

_____
Author Signature

_____
Editor Signature

_____
Author Name - Print

_____
Jason A. Wolf, PhD
Editor Name - Print

_____
Author Affiliation

_____
Patient Experience Journal
Editor Affiliation

_____
Date

_____
07/24/20
Date

_____
Author Contact Email